The Central California Writing Project presents

The CCWP Annual Writing Conference:

Who should attend: All educators and administrators who understand how important academic writing is for student achievement.

What: A rich variety of instructional strategies and forums for teacher dialogue centered on the teaching of writing, K-16, with a special emphasis on English Learners.

Highlights include:
- Keynote speaker: Don Rothman, UCSC Professor and CCWP’s founder
- “Rural Voices:” A Celebration of “Writing from the Places We Call Home”
- A selection of “best practices” workshops to choose from
- An overview of other high-quality, NCLB-approved professional development offerings from CCWP designed to improve the teaching of writing.

When & Where: April 1, 2006, 9am – 2:30pm, UCSC Oakes College

Why? Because writing matters!

To Register: $40 pre-registration through March 22, $50 at the door. Includes lunch. Use the registration form below. Additional registration forms are available at the CCWP website http://ccwp.ucsc.edu (follow the links to Writing Matters) or contact Carol Artman at cartman@ucsc.edu, (831) 459-4506. If paying by purchase order, please pre-register before March 22 indicating purchase order number.

May count toward professional growth hours for credential renewal. CCWP is an authorized inservice provider for NCLB programs including HOUSSE hours when combined with local writing project follow-up programs and approved by your district. For more information, contact CCWP.

Writing Matters Registration Form (please print clearly) $40 pre-registration (by 3/22/06); $50 at door

Name ___________________________ Email ___________________________ Day phone __________________

Street
Address ___________________________ City ___________________________ Zip __________________

School ___________________________ District ___________________________ Purchase order # __________________

Send completed registration form with a check made payable to UC Regents/CCWP to: CCWP, Oakes Faculty Services, UCSC, 1156 High St., Santa Cruz, CA 95064. Sorry, no refunds for registration after March 17.